

Christopher Blattman The University of Chicago

Julian Jamison University of Exeter

Margaret Sheridan University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill

Sustainable Transformation for Youth in Liberia

Behavioral therapy with cash grants led to significant fall in crime, drug use, and violence among high-risk urban men compare from the more than half the population of developing in Liberus capital, Monrovia. They recruited the highest risk works, crime, and drugs as recommended to the highest risk men—those engaged in words. Cities are home to more thanhalf the population of developing countries. Many cities straggle to dual with large-scale urban violence, crime, and drugs, expecially among poor young men. In postconfict and fragile states, poor young men. In postconfict and fragile states, poor young men are also trigges for mobilization into election interestation, noting and reballion. In Liberia, which have two civil wast between 1991 and 2003, development experts and golicymakers are seeking evidence on the most effective ways to reduce crime and violence among high risk young men.

Two of the most common poky prescriptions—job-charton and policymakers are seeking and policymakers crime and violence by either the representation of the most common poky prescriptions—job-charton and policymakers are seeking the interest of the community. The study also tested unconditional cash transfers to the light his keep, with and without otherapy. The ealulation found that even these highest-risk young menal period of the community of the study also tested unconditional cash transfers to the light his work of the community. The study also tested unconditional cash transfers to the light his work had without therapy. The ealulation found that even these highest-risk young menalized in a processing colored to a community of the community. The study also tested unconditional therapy. The ealulation found that even these highest-risk young menalized in a discription of the produced short-run improvements in investment and income.

An alternative approach of the unconditional brains for collarable times of the community of the community of the community. The study also tested unconditional through the unconditio

Sustainable Transformation for Youth in Liberia

Behavioral therapy with cash grants led to significant fall in crime, drug use, and violence among high-risk urban men.

This material is based upon work supported by the National Science Foundation. Any opinions, findings, conclusions, or recommendations expressed in this material are those of the author(s) and do not necessarily reflect the views of the National Science Foundation.