IPA Presents at ITU Webinar on Research Methods to Identify COVID-Related Financial Crimes

In many developing countries, poor people who are already struggling with a lack of income due to the health impact of the coronavirus pandemic have been targeted by online fraudsters. A concerted effort by the public and private sectors is needed to protect customers through educational efforts and high-visibility law enforcement actions. During this webinar, IPA shared ongoing efforts to identify these scams via surveys, social media analysis, and other research tools.
