

Article Link

<https://guardian.ng/features/science/covid-19-challenges-raise-concerns-over-fu...>

The Guardian on the Urgency of Responding to Viral Diseases in Low-Income Countries

A piece in The Guardian argues for the need to prioritize the response to COVID-19 and other viruses in developing countries and cites a survey conducted by IPA and over 30 other institutions which found overall that people in lower-income countries were more interested in getting a COVID vaccine than in the higher-income countries studied.

August 31, 2021